Worksheet 5: Newspaper article

- A. Look at the headline and the picture.
Read the article and answer the questions.

A heart attack, a coma,
then Lucas wins $250,000

The impossibly fortunate Lucas Marina shows off his lottery prize, one of a string of lucky breaks for this 38 year-old truck driver who was on the brink of death 13 months ago. "It can't be true. I thank my lucky stars."

1. What does the headline tell you about Lucas?

2. How did Lucas get the car shown in the picture?

3. Why do you think Lucas says "it can't be true. I thank my lucky stars."

B. Read the full article and answer the questions.

By Jack Myer
Sydney

A year ago they were about to switch off Lucas Marina's life support system.

Yesterday the television cameras gathered to record him receiving a car he'd won in a scratch lottery.

Then he bought another ticket from the same newsagent for luck and while the cameras rolled he scratched it and won $ 250,000.

Mr Marina's tale of luck reads like fiction.

He suffered a heart attack in May last year after driving himself to hospital and was treated with a drug to which he had a violent reaction.

As a result his heart stopped beating for almost 15 minutes.

The 38 year-old truck driver remained unconscious in the Liverpool Hospital for several days, his doctors just about giving up on him.

Only hours before they were due to switch off his life support system, they changed their minds and decided to monitor him for a few more days.

Mr. Marina then experienced his first stroke of luck.

Normally anyone whose heart has stopped for as long as his would either be dead or would have suffered serious brain damage.

But for Lucas Marina not only did he wake up for the first time in 15 days, he came out of the coma without any signs of ill-effects.

"The doctors asked me how I felt and I think the first thing I said to them was that I was hungry" he said.

Then he got even luckier. The company he worked for kept his job open for him and to celebrate his recovery he got engaged to his girlfriend of seven years.

Then his luck continued. A fortnight ago he bought a scratch lottery ticket from his local newsagent.

The ticket won him a $25,000 Toyota Hatch. With that he concluded he'd come a full circle.

But then he got even luckier. At a publicity event yesterday at which he took delivery of his new car, Mr Marina was asked to re-enact the ticket purchase for the cameras.

He duly obliged, and bought a $5 'scratchie' at the same newsagency from which he bought the lucky car ticket.

He scratched the plastic film of the ticket and let out a yell. The ticket was worth a quarter of a million dollars.

As the gathered media muttered cynically about corny publicity stunts, Mr Marina broke down and started to cry.

"I really have won $250,000" he said. And so he had.

The man who 'died' 13 months ago has again beaten the odds.

"All these months I've had time to think about the heart attack and I thank my lucky stars for my recovery."

"It was a worry even after I came out of hospital. But things have gone so well – I got my old job back, I got engaged, I won a car and now.... It can't be true." Lucky for him it is.

1. Lucas' story is summarised in the first three paragraphs of the article. What three significant events are outlined in this summary?

2. This article gives some indication that Lucas had extreme good luck and bad luck.
- a. Why was Lucas so unlucky when he went into hospital with a heart attack?

- b. Why was he lucky that he came out of the coma in good health?

3. Why did Lucas buy the lotto ticket which won him $250,000?

4. Why didn't the media believe him when he said he had won $250,000?

C. Answer these questions about yourself.

Have you ever bought a lottery ticket? If so, what lottery did you enter?

Have you ever won anything in a lottery? If so, what did you win?

Are lotteries popular in your home country?

What type of lotteries do you have in your country?

Worksheet 6: Reading the newspaper

A. Before you read the newspaper story, answer these questions.

What is the headline of the story?

Describe the picture.

What do you think the story will be about?

I think the story will be about

B. Read the newspaper story.
Underline the new words and translate them into your language.
